Discussion of current health equity landscape

The Associate Director led discussions on current health equity landscape. The Committee discussed the following topics around "patient-centered care" and "people most impacted by health inequity":

- Black community's relationship with medical establishments.
  - There is a lack of trust and often harm happens instead of health, leading to "deferred maintenance" on black bodies. This shows up in several ways, such as health and morbidity rates of local Black youth.
  - What are ways to bring gaps closer? Telehealth, pop-up clinics, etc.
  - Internal barrier vs. systemic racism. Black communities are responding to actively racist medical instruments and processes with distrust and fear.

- Latinx and Rural communities are continuing to struggle.
  - Vaccination hesitancy with emerging delta variant in rural areas.
  - Lack of quality and culturally appropriate providers and healthcare workers in rural areas
  - Mental health trends and behavioral health for rural youth.

- Indigenous communities and discomfort in spaces that are predominately white
  - Cultural training for larger institutions.
  - Native health spaces do not always cover all health services. These are mostly primary care, not necessarily care for secondary services and access to the system.
  - When a Native person is in the hospital, the entire family is in the hospital. Health systems should accommodate for multi-generational families.

- AAPI community is not a monolith and extremely diverse.
  - Perception of the AAPI community as a monolith is racism and harmful.
  - Individuals should receive language access and culturally appropriate care.
